(literally, selection; in plural, selektionen), term used by the Nazis to denote the sorting of deportees or prisoners into two groups---those who were to do forced labor, and those who were to be killed.