J.Cunningham, R. Stallard – Reino Unido

Tampoco me hubiera sorprendido si se hubieran convertido en asaltantes, ladrones y asesinos, y en ese caso serían los más humanos y los más justos de este tipo en el mundo.

Llegaron hambrientos , despojados , destruídos, vencidos y lo primero era la satisfacción de las necesidades básicas: el pan, un techo, un trabajo, y todo se podría haber sumergido en una mísera vida aparentemente rehabilitada...

Aba Kovner, 1988

Protižidovské zákony

V roce 1935 vešly v Německu v platnost Norimberské zákony, které zbavovaly osoby židovského původu plnohodnotného občanství. Židé přišli o volební právo, měli zakázané manželství a mimomanželský styk s osobami nežidovského původu. Později byl židům zakázán výkon odborných zaměstnání, děti nesměly navštěvovat běžné školy. Kvůli finančnímu tlaku zkrachovala většina židovských podniků.

Translation of Poster: Text: Anti-Jewish Laws in 1935: the Nuremberg Laws were introduced in the Nazi Germany: depriving all persons of Jewish origin of German citizenship, Jews were deprived of their right to vote, they were prohibited from marrying or having affairs with persons of non-Jewish origin. Later on, the Jews were banned from performing jobs requiring expert skills; their children could not attend regular schools. Most Jewish-owned enterprises and businesses went bankrupt due to financial pressure.
